Senate Has Meeting on Debt Ceiling

Talk of Compromise Is Hinted on President's Plea for 15-Billion Passed in House

Washington, Aug. 1 (AP)—The Senate Finance Committee went into session today to decide what to do about President Eisenhower's last minute plea for a 15-billion-dollar boost in the national debt limit. There was some talk of a compromise on the politically touchy issue.

One committee member, it was learned, showed up with a compromise proposal of a temporary five billion dollar increase in the ceiling. This would run only until June 30, 1954.

However, Chairman Millikin (R-Colo.) said he knew of no overnight behind-the-scenes agreement on any compromise.

A compromise acceptable to most senators would permit an early windup of this session. Presumably a compromise would be approved by the House, which yesterday gave Eisenhower a big victory by voting the full increase to 290 billions in the debt limit.

The debt limit now stands at 275 billions. The national debt has reached 272½ billions.

Proposes Two Billions

Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.), who is not a member of the committee, proposed in a statement that the debt limit be raised two billions. This compromise would stay in effect until Congress returns to Washington next January and makes a full study.

The plan which reportedly is to be laid before the committee calls for raising the limit temporarily to 280 billions.

One hand to try to persuade the Finance Committee to go along with a boost to a 290 billion dollar debt limit were Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey and Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge.

Also in and out of the committee room was Lt. Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, the White House liaison man with Congress. Asked by a reporter about the prospects, Persons said: "It's too close for comfort."

Silent on Position

Sen. Kerr (D-Oka.) flew back from Oklahoma for the key meeting. He had gone home because of the death of his mother. He declined to state his position on the debt limit before the meeting.

Two Republicans who have opposed the President's proposal, Sens. Williams (Del.) and Hugh Butler (Neb.), both said they knew of no change in the situation.

A check of the committee yesterday indicated a majority against the measure.

Victory in House

The House gave the President a roaring victory on the politically explosive issue by a 239-158 vote last night. Then House Republican leader Halleck of Indiana announced the House should be ready to quit and go home by tonight.

But there appeared to be far more opposition in the Senate, particularly among the Democrats. And the Senate Democrats are in a majority now, 47-46 over the Republicans, because of the deaths of Sens. Charles Tobey (R-N.H.) and Robert A. Taft (R-Oio).

The Finance Committee session was called to meet (9 AES) before closed doors, with Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey as the star administration witness.

He had a tough selling job on his hand. More than half of the 13 committee members were on record as being actively against the proposed hike in the 275-billion-dollar ceiling, or at least highly doubtful about it at this time.

Talks of Panic

Humphrey has said that, if the ceiling on what this country can legally owe is not boosted to 290 billion dollars, the government might not be able to meet its payroll or pay its bills. And that, he contends, "would just cause near panic."

Sen. Millikin (R-Colo.), the committee chairman, said Humphrey—one of the most respected cabinet members on Capitol Hill—would be given "all the time he needs to state his case."

Millikin, who also is chairman of the conference of all Republican senators, was making no predictions and not even announcing his personal position. But the administration obviously was counting on him to help pick up some doubtful votes.

Hanging on the committee's decision was the question of when this Congress can close up shop.

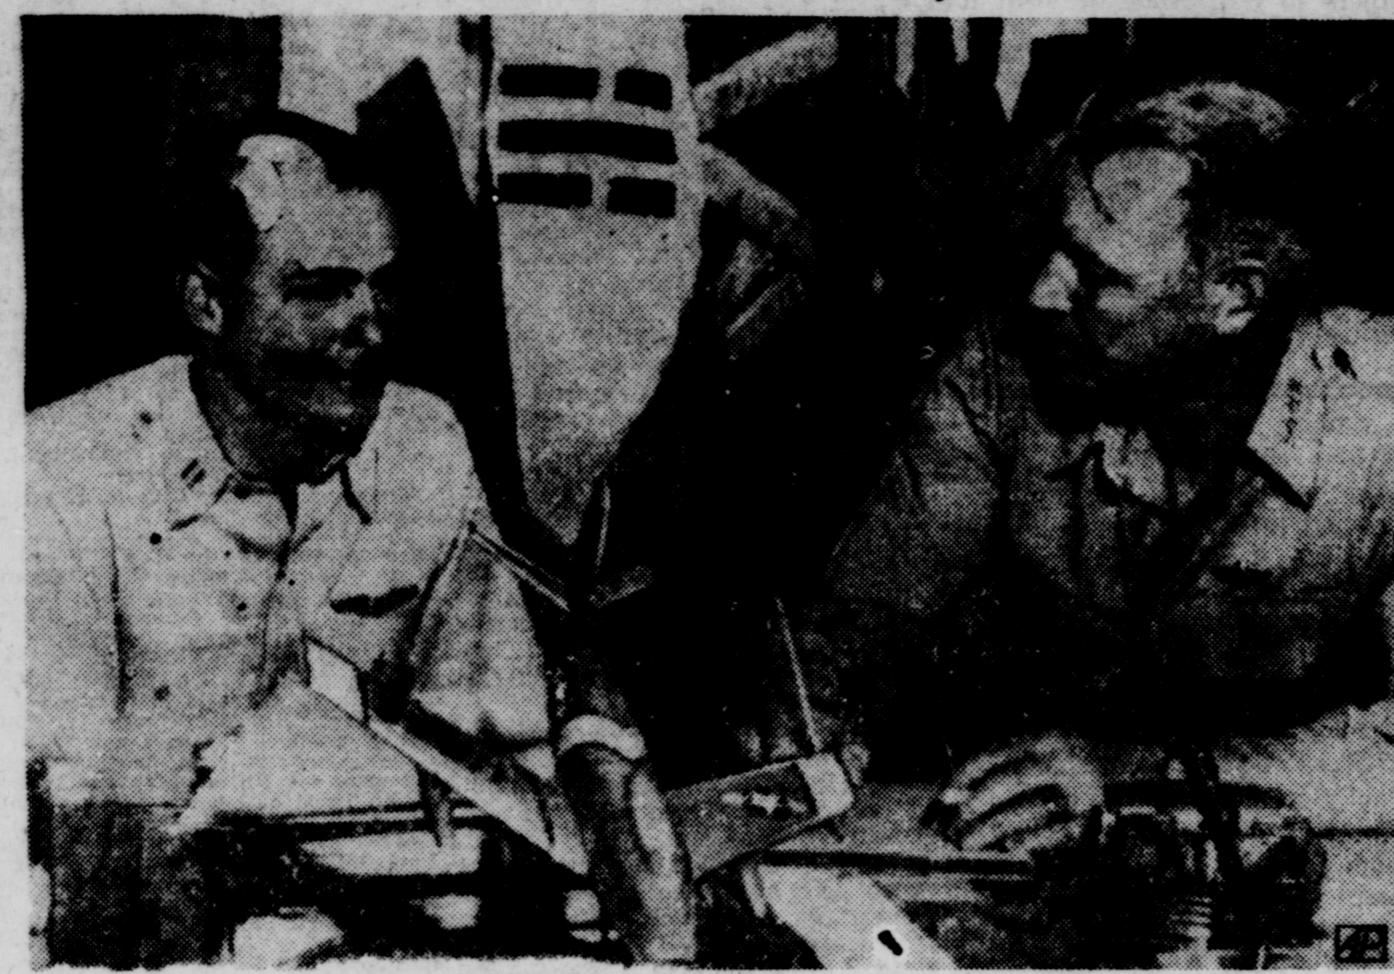

The leaders had been figuring for weeks on this as the last day. But the request to boost the debt limit and the death of Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) upset the reckoning.

The deadline for adjournment by tonight still could be met if the Finance Committee rejected the debt plan. Most of the other legislative business is cleaned up.

A compromise $6,652,422,390 Foreign Aid Money Bill, approved finally by the House 237-156 yesterday, is up for Senate concurrence.

Hungry Germans Swarm Over Iron Curtain for Food

U. S. Free Food Parcels Pass Million Mark; Weekend Invasion Gets Underway

Berlin, Aug. 1 (AP)—The American-financed distribution of free food parcels to East Germans passed the million mark today.

German officials handling the gigantic mercy campaign announced that a record 260,000 parcels were distributed yesterday, boosting the total for five days to 900,000. Then relief stations working through the night pushed the give-away past a million as a huge weekend invasion began.

From early morning new masses of hungry people swarmed over the Iron Curtain, defying Communist arrest and confiscations, to get the western gifts. The Communist press sputtered with frustration and admitted that the Red government was afraid to take the drastic step of closing the border with free West Berlin to stop the rush.

In the crowds, as the gigantic give-away rolled through its sixth day, were the vanguard of a weekend invasion of thousands of Russian zone factory workers, using their day off to "come and get it."

They included employees of the huge Leuna synthetic gasoline refinery and other large state-owned industries.

Many of these workers had defied Communist police and Russian tanks in the great strikes and demonstrations of June 17. Now they again showed their defiance of Communist orders by accepting the western bounty.

Insists Flight Was 40 Miles Off Soviet Territory Near Siberia

Tokyo, Aug. 1 (AP)—"It was absolutely an unprovoked attack, 40 miles from Russian territory," said the co-pilot of an American B-50 shot down at sea in a Russian jet attack off Siberia Wednesday.

Capt. John E. Roche, today directly contradicted Moscow charges that the big bomber and its 17-man crew were over Siberia near the Red naval base, Vladivostok, and that the Americans fired first.

Roche told a news conference: "We were definitely 40 miles from Russian territory. Our navigation is almost infallible. It was visual, Loran and Q13 (radar). We weren't any closer than 40 miles."

Radar and Loran are electronic ranging and directional devices used for plotting position.

Reports MIG Blasts

Roche, 28, said a MIG jet with Russian insignia flashed in and blasted one of the bomber's four engines. Then—so quickly that it might have been a different MIG—an engine on the other wing was shot up.

The right wing fell off and the big plane crumpled into the Sea of Japan. The crew was ordered to bail out.

Roche, of Washington, D. C., was the only crewman rescued by U. S. ships.

The U. S. State Department protested the attack to Russia and said it had information some of the 16 others had been saved by Russian vessels. However, Roche said he did not see any Red craft in the area.

Saw Russian Boats

Crew members of rescue planes which scoured the area said they saw several Russian PT-type boats which may have picked up other crew members.

Roche said the American destroyer Picking, which plucked him from the sea in the pre-dawn darkness Thursday—22 hours after the crash—had stopped a Russian "trawler or tug boat" and questioned the crew, but saw no

Reds' Chief Delegate Wishes Group Success; Allied Prisoners Are on Way Home

Munsan, Aug. 1 (AP)—The four nation neutral commission which will police the Korean armistice met at Panmunjom today for the first time and heard the Communists' chief military armistice delegate wish it success.

Meanwhile, the first group of allied prisoners was reported on its way down the road to freedom and the UN command prepared a full dress reception rehearsal for Monday to speed their homeward journey. The prisoner exchange is scheduled to begin Wednesday at Panmunjom.

The neutral commission officers from Sweden, Switzerland, Poland and Czechoslovakia were introduced and exchanged credentials in a formal meeting at the dusty truce site.

The commission's chief function is to watch for violations of the armistice.

Maj. Gen. Blackshear M. Bryan, the allies' senior delegate to the UN-Red Military Armistice Commission, introduced the Swiss and Swedish representatives, Lt. Gen. Lee Sang Cho, Bryan's counterpart on the commission, introduced the Poles and Czechs. Lee told the officers:

Red Wishes for Success

"I hope for the success of the members of the neutral nations supervisory commission."

The Red Peiping radio said the first allied prisoners would be non-Korean sick and wounded—including Americans and British—from a camp at Pyoktong near the Manchurian border.

The radio said the prisoners were given a farewell "grand feast" before being put on trains for the trip to Panmunjom.

The Reds have said they will release 12,763 allied captives, 3,313 of them Americans, in the massive exchange. The UN will deliver about 74,000 Communist POWs.

Allied POWs will be turned over by the Reds at Panmunjom, and then rushed to Freedom Village at Munsan for processing.

Complaint Filed Against AFL Local On Miron Charge

New York, Aug. 1 (Special)—

The National Labor Relations Board has issued a formal complaint against an AFL local after investigation of a charge by the Miron Building Products Company, Inc., of 60 Ferry street, Kingston, that the local induced employees of other firms to engage in a strike or secondary boycott against the company.

The complaint was issued against the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of America, Local 455, AFL, which has offices in Newburgh and Yonkers. It states that since "on or about April 1953" Local 455 "has engaged in and by appeals, orders, directions, instructions and other conduct, has induced and encouraged . . . the employees of Gens Jarboe, Inc., Turner Construction Co., Brewster Construction Co., Earl Sickler, and employees of other employers, to engage in a strike or secondary boycott in and by appealing to their employment to use, process, transport, or otherwise handle

State Funeral Arranged For Senator Taft Monday

Yonta Body Is Met By Family, Veteran Units and Officials

Details Will Be Given Later; Propose Body Lie in State at Capitol Rotunda

Washington, Aug. 1 (AP)—Congressional leaders arranged today for a state funeral for Sen. Robert A. Taft, probably on Monday, with details to be announced later.

Jack Martin, administrative assistant to the late Senate leader, told reporters this had been agreed upon after a conference in the office of J. Mark Trice, secretary of the Senate.

Attending were Senate and House leaders and Sherman Adams, administrative assistant to President Eisenhower.

Martin said Mrs. Taft and the family had consented to the state funeral and that burial would be at Cincinnati, Taft's home town.

Taft's death yesterday, from cancer, continued to evoke expressions of grief and praise.

In the midst of the Ohio Republican's Senate colleagues had proposed that his body be brought from New York to lie in state in the rotunda of the Capitol.

The Senate recessed yesterday in respect to Taft, but the House solemnly continued in session and last night formally adopted a resolution expressing profound sorrow before adjourning out of respect.

Thunderstorms Skip Texas Drought Area

(By The Associated Press)

Showers and thunderstorms dotted the nation today but the section that needs rain most—the Texas drought area—got only a trace.

Most of the storms were reported in the southern Great Lakes region and the northern and central Rockies. Widely scattered thunderstorms also hit southeastern states.

Elsewhere, skies were fair to partly cloudy. Mostly early morning temperatures were in the 60s and 70s. With cooler readings reported near the Canadian border. Mt. Washington, N. H., recorded freezing 29 while Massena, N. Y., has a cool 46. The Gulf states were generally in the 80s.

The Soviet planes made a firing pass. The two F84s returned the fire, with one of them hitting and apparently damaging one of the LA11s. Neither American plane was hit. The February incident was at least three miles inside the international boundary separating them.

2 Senators Irked Over Silent Way

Flanders and Sparkman Think Pentagon Lets Moscow Get Jump in Propaganda Plans

Washington, Aug. 1 (AP)—U. S. officials drafted today a rejection of Russia's protest that American pilots shot down a Soviet plane—and pondered the curious timing of the Russian communication.

The Russians said U. S. fliers shot down one of their passenger planes in Red China July 27. Earlier, the U. S. Far East Air Forces had announced jet fighter Ralph Parr of Apple Valley, Calif., had shot down an IL-12 Russian-built transport over North Korea, south of the Chinese border, at noon Monday, 10 hours before the freshly signed Korean armistice went into effect. The Russians waited four days before making their report and protest.

Ask About Survivors

In the meantime, on Wednesday, their MIG 15 fighters had attacked and destroyed a U. S. B-50 bomber off Siberia. They charged this aircraft violated Soviet territory. The U. S. denied this, protested "in the strongest terms" and demanded a report on some survivors said to have been picked up by the Russians.

U. S. officials wondered, considering the ceaseless contest between east and west propaganda advantages, why the Russians had delayed and then protested. Were they attempting a bold cover-up for their own action?

Meanwhile, two senators complained bitterly that the United States had been outfoxed.

Cites 'Pentagon Stupidity'

Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.), a member of the Armed Services Committee, said that letting the USSR tell the world first about the B-50 incident in the Sea of Japan was "just another case of stupidity" and agreed upon after a conference in the office of J. Mark Trice, secretary of the Senate.

Attending were Senate House leaders and Sherman Adams, administrative assistant to President Eisenhower.

Adams said Mrs. Taft and the family had consented to the state funeral and that burial would be at Cincinnati, Taft's home town.

Glenford School To Close; Will Shift Students

During the recent meeting of taxpayers of the Glenford School District, a vote was taken regarding the question of whether or not to close the school and send the Glenford pupils to Onteora Central School. The vote was 24-2 in favor of closing the school.

During the summer of 1952 the Glenford District voted to become a part of the Onteora Central School. The one room school at Glenford remained open for pupils in grades 1-6 during the 1952-1953 school year.

At the meeting of the Adult Education Advisory Committee for the Onteora Central School District on July 29, John Aalto was elected chairman and Mrs. Janice Franklin was elected secretary for the coming year. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Stanley Shultz, Mrs. Phyllis Howland, Mrs. Dorethea Quick, Mrs. Louise Bedell, Mrs. Gertrude Cruckshank, Mrs. Frances Rosa, Mrs. Margaret Byron, Mrs. Nelson Shultz, Mrs. Floyd Hill and Dr. Samuel Porter. Mrs. Edna Bishop, who was recently elected to the board of education, submitted her resignation which was accepted.

Monday night, Sept. 28 was tentatively set as the date of registering for class which will start the following week. The next meeting of the committee will be held Sept. 16 at which time they will work on publicity and courses to offer for the coming year.

More information will be available after the Sept. 16 meeting of the committee.

Youth Loses His Life Swimming for Aid

Bar Harbor, Maine, Aug. 1 (AP)—A sailboat capsized in the choppy Atlantic last night and a 17-year-old youth perished swimming for aid to his three teen-age companions.

The trio reached shore safely with the aid of life preservers but the body of Gordon (Jerry) Jenkins of Bar Harbor—who told the others to wait while he went for help—was not found.

Treated for shock and exposure but in good condition at hospital were Charlotte Thorne, 14, granddaughter of Mrs. Potter Palmer of Chicago; Irene Flax, 15, of Palm Beach, Fla.; and Lawrence Thompson, 17, of West Hartford, Conn.

Dewey said the prisoner "has developed an apparently genuine interest in preparation for the ministry and plans to enroll at a recognized theological seminary for the September term."

Afraid of Uncle

Cacopardo at first said he shot the girl on Dec. 13, 1936, in Brooklyn, later he claimed that his uncle, Paul Petrillo of Philadelphia had done it. Cacopardo said he had confessed falsely because he had been afraid of the uncle.

In King's County Court, Cacopardo was sentenced on June 23, 1937, to serve 30 years to life. Two years later Petrillo was accused of leading a ring that poisoned victims to collect on their life insurance policies.

At the trial in Philadelphia, Cacopardo testified that Petrillo had killed the girl. Cacopardo said she refused to return a letter her uncle had written, offering to slay her stepfather for $500.

Do You Remember
BY SOPHIE MILLER

From time to time the question has come up, where did George Main have his harness shop? Some folks remember the wooden white horse, he placed on the sidewalk in front of his store. I remember a harness shop on the corner of Broadway and Abeel street, which I think also had a white horse on display. I think the following item from a Kingston Freeman and Journal of Tuesday, June 4, 1912 will solve part of this mystery. "Business Notice. George Main has moved his harness store from 41 Broadway to 11 Hasbrouck avenue, where he will be pleased to meet his customers." Some folks have argued that he was first on Hasbrouck avenue, or that another Main had the store on Broadway, which later was called the "Greenwald Building." The Greenwalds had their shoe store there and owned the building. The white wooden horse, as most folks remember it, stood on a wooden platform which was on wheels so that Mr. Main could take it in at night. In the summertime, when the summer trolleys went down Hasbrouck avenue to the Point, the horse was so near the trolley, due to the narrow sidewalk that some young boys wanted to touch it.

Those were also the days of real horses like the one owned by Mr. Sherman, who bought the Furman place at Port Ewen. The horse ran away while he was delivering milk on Union street one Sunday afternoon. The horse continued on to Broadway where it was finally caught and no damage done. But in the space of some 10 minutes, that quiet Sunday afternoon, the excitement drew some 500 sightseers to the scene.

Rondout must have been a very busy place back in 1912 and it certainly must have been the "shoe center" for in the help wanted advertisements the following appears: "Wanted—10 experienced shoe clerks, men or women. Harter, Mrs. Thomas Sears, Mrs. Charles Champin, Mrs. D. H. Starr, Miss Belle Brinckerhoff, Mrs. W. B. Taber, Mrs. Rose Seaman, Miss Rowena Harcourt and the hostess Mrs. Joseph Mellor. John Parks who has been receiving treatment at St. Francis Hospital, Poughkeepsie, has returned home.

Mrs. Harry Thorne, supervisor of music in the Central school and Charles Patrick have been attending Fred Waring School at Delaware Water Gap, Pa.

The FORT ADAMSCoffee Table Is Easy to Build

Here's a strikingly handsome piece of furniture for your living room that you can build in an afternoon.

Designed by New York author and designer Norman Cherner, this coffee table should cost you only about $6.50 (national average based on latest available Chicago retail sales for fir plywood compiled by leading trade magazine; prices may vary depending upon source of supply).

The table consists of one panel of inexpensive fir plywood framed with simple stringers and supported on four wooden dowel legs. At one end there are four holes for potted plants. Without pots, the holes serve to relieve the simplicity of the design.

The long edge is framed on both sides with an upright stringer and the ends with flat stringers which can be painted a contrasting color.

If you are handy with tools you can probably build the piece in three hours.

Get plans from your local lumber dealer or send ten cents to Douglas Fir Plywood Association, Tacoma, Wash.

House With Brown Roof

A house with a brown roof looks well when its body is painted in buff, cream or white. To add color distinction shutters and doors may be painted in old blue, verdigris green or one of the pleasant russet tones.

Pot Plant Needs Water

Pot plants require a moist soil when growing, but too much water may cause disease to affect the plants, checking their growth or killing them. If the gardener learns how and when to water, much trouble will be avoided.

Linseed Oil Applications

To maintain the flexibility and the strength of a ladder and to prevent its splintering, rub boiled linseed oil into it once a week for several weeks. Each year thereafter, repeat with one or two coats. If the surface of the ladder is rough, first rub it down with sandpaper. If it's smooth and in good condition, you can apply the oil with a cloth.

An item in "About the Folks" column in the Freeman and Journal of Friday, June 7, 1912, read as follows: "Mrs. George Chandler, wife of Dr. Chandler, was stricken suddenly with appendicitis on Wednesday morning. An operation was performed at her home on East Chestnut street. Lt. Dr. William J. O'Leary and Dr. Frank Keator. The operation was successful and her condition is very favorable."

All three bedrooms in this modern home are located in the right wing; thus, maximum privacy and quiet is assured for the sleeping rooms. Generous closet space is provided in this wing. Both the middle and front bedrooms have one spacious closet apiece while the third or master bedroom has two good-sized closets. Another closet, opening on the connecting hallway, just to the right of the door of the master bedroom, can be used for any general storage purpose that you desire.

An unusually large cedar closet and a coat closet also open on this central hallway. The coat closet will make a convenient place for guests to leave their wraps. A linen closet is placed directly across the hall from these two closets; hence it is located conveniently near to the bedrooms and the bath, as well.

Opening directly off the kitchen, the charming dining room is well lighted by two large windows in its back wall. China closets, built into both back corners, provide welcome storage place and are at the same time points of decorative interest in the room.

No breakfast nook is provided in the all modern kitchen, which is strictly a work center with all cabinets, cupboards, counter space and appliances placed where they will be most accessible and useful for the busy housewife.

However, the proximity of the dining room makes it ideal for all-meal use by the family that lives in "The Fort Adams."

Stars to the basement lead down from the kitchen. The laundry/utility room, which opens to the left off the kitchen, might actually be considered an extension of that room. Doors lead from the utility room to both the front and back yards—features you'll certainly appreciate when you do the family laundry.

Protected entrance to the garage is available also through both the front and back doors. This will come in handy when you're coming from the garage, too, in stormy weather.

Cubage:

House 16,500 ft.

Garage 3,500 ft.

Dimensions 59' x 44'

Three breaks in the architectural line of the front of "The Fort Adams" give a distinctive charm to the exterior.

Measuring 59 feet by 44, "The Fort Adams" has a cubage of 16,500 feet. The garage cubage is 3,500 feet. At least an 80-foot lot would be required to build this house. To gain the most advantage from its natural charms set "The Fort Adams" back a good distance from the street or road and, if possible, have a sizeable amount of free land on either side of the house.

If you so desire you can have this house built with a partial basement or without any basement at all, because all needed installations can be placed on the ground floor. However, if you prefer to have the heating plant in the basement, you can have it installed under the living room. The remaining basement area can be made into a play room, or next to the utility portion of the yard for garden equipment or next to a barbecue pit for barbecue equipment.

With about 60 cubic feet of storage area inside, the unit can be used in several different ways. Placed near a children's play area, it becomes a weatherproof deposit box for playthings. It can be located in the utility portion of the yard for garden equipment or next to a barbecue pit for barbecue equipment.

It is a natural for a lake or shoreside home or boating and fishing gear or in a summer camp where equipment should be left for several weeks at a time.

Complete, easy-to-follow plans are available at many lumber dealer showrooms. Or send 10 cents to Douglas Fir Plywood Association, Tacoma, Wash.

Designed to be built with just four panels of exterior fir plywood with waterproof glue, it will have a dozen uses wherever you put it.

Plywood eliminates much of the conventional framing needed for this type of job and it shouldn't be more than a weekend project to assemble.

TAFT'S PLACE CANNOT BE FILLED

Robert A. Taft deeply wished to be President. Though he sought that office three times, he never won it. Yet he served his country with far greater devotion and distinction than some of those who did reach the White House.

The senator from Ohio was one of the most brilliant men ever to cross the American political stage. The son of President William Howard Taft, he felt he was born to public service, and he filled the role to the hilt.

From the first moment he stepped into the United States Senate in 1939, Taft was a commanding figure.

He understood the legislative processes thoroughly. He made himself an authority on all major bills. The Senate has never seen a harder worker. A bulging brief case, borne home almost every night, was a symbol of his tireless insistence upon being informed.

His colleagues looked to Taft automatically for guidance and leadership. He rose swiftly in party councils and esteem. A year after he entered the Senate he made his first campaign for the presidency.

The senator was a genuine conservative in outlook, but all the evidence suggests he was not an extremist, that indeed he had far more flexibility of mind than his critics credited to him. In truth, he was often unpredictable. He gave his agile mind free rein, and he followed where it took him. The results confounded both friend and foe.

Many thought of him as cold, aloof, autocratic. The senator did often show impatience with what he deemed stupidity or ignorance. But his friends maintained he was shy rather than aloof; they found him warm, friendly.

Still, the legend grew and persisted that Taft had a chilly, colorless personality. From this it was a short step to the argument that he was politically "unsalable" for presidential purposes. It was a handicap he could never overcome as he encountered successively such competing personalities as Wendell Willkie, Thomas E. Dewey and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

There was bitter irony in this for Taft. Looking the scholar, he actually was a master of political mechanics down to the precinct level. When he gained re-election in Ohio in 1950, he generated a campaign organization probably never matched in America. Yet something—or someone—always thwarted him when he tried to translate his great grasp of affairs into a successful White House bid.

Part of the story was the legend of unsalability, so firmly fixed in the minds of many politicians who otherwise admired Taft intensely. The rest is largely guesswork. Some observers blamed his foreign views, which seemed to tend toward isolationism; he denied it.

The defeat in the strident battle of 1952 was his most crushing, because he came so close. Many a man thereafter would have given himself up to bitterness. But once again, most triumphantly, Taft bewildered the detractors who saw him in too-simple, black-and-white terms. He swallowed his defeat with magnificent grace.

He accepted the Senate majority leadership, thereby enrolling as President Eisenhower's chief lieutenant on Capitol Hill. In his post, he fought ably and hard for goals his former opponent desired. He submerged himself and linked his fortunes with his rival's.

When illness suddenly felled him and he had to withdraw from the Senate scene, distinguished men of both parties attested to Taft's high talents as a leader and his impressive fairness in accommodating all points of view. It was clear he could have had a bright record as the President's main advocate in the Senate.

His passing cannot be compensated. Neither the Republican Party nor the Congress can offer another with the same force and impact upon the law-making process. The nation honors him for service gallantly ren-

THE AGE OF GENIUS

The other night, during the intermission of a Mozart concert, up at Tanglewood in the Berkshires, I could not help remarking that Mozart had performed such wonders by the age of 16. A friend commented that genius comes in cycles and we are outside the cycle. It was one of those remarks that sticks in one's craw until something is done about it. Is it true that there is a cycle of genius and a cycle of the commonplace?

Let us start with Johann Sebastian Bach and we have "Gott Ist Mein Koenig" in 1707, when he was 22 years old. Fourteen years later, he produced the "Brandenburg Concertos," which, in a way, are the beginning of the modern orchestra. Bach died in 1750, nine years before Haydn produced his First Symphony and 14 years before Mozart wrote his "Sonates pour le Clavecin." Mozart died in 1791; he was alive when Beethoven began to write.

So, we have 120 years, from 1707, when Bach's first composition was written, to 1827, when Beethoven died. In music, this is the golden age of genius. Apart from Bach, Handel, Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven, this period produced other composers whose works are still being played.

It was an extraordinarily rich period in all fields, in innovation and discovery, in the beginning of modern science. Isaac Newton published his "Universal Arithmetic" the year that Handel wrote his "Rodrigo"; Leeuwenhoek produced his microscope a year later; Alexander Pope wrote his "Pastorals" the year that Gusmao made the first ascent in a balloon at Lisbon and the following year Sir Christopher Wren completed the magnificent St. Paul's in London.

What a wonderful time I am having as I go through this period of 120 years! How envious one can be of such a year as 1734 when Swedenborg published his philosophy; Bach his "Christmas Oratorio"; Montesquieu his "Considerations on the Grandeur and Decadence of the Romans"; Voltaire, his "Letters Philosophiques."

I look at the year 1764, when Mozart first appeared. The gentle architect, Robert Adam, had completed the beautiful Kenwood Lodge. James Watt invented the first steam engine. Haydn published his "String Quartet, opus 1." Immanuel Kant produced his master-work in esthetics. Voltaire issued his "Dictionnaire Philosophique."

Or I turn to 1827, the year that Beethoven died, the end of this period. In that year, Faraday published his "Chemical Manipulation" and Helium his "The Constitutional History of England." Tennyson issued "Poems by Two Brothers." Turner painted "Ulysses Deriding Polyphemus." Schubert was writing songs and Heine poems. Balzac, Victor Hugo and Stendhal were producing novels.

This is the period of revolution, of the stimulation of the imagination of youth by new ideas, new countries, new developments. The American and French Revolutions stirred the world and Napoleon moved across continents.

Can we draw any conclusions from all this? Does it help us to understand why this period of 120 years is an age of genius? Does it aid us to understand our own times when on the cultural side of life so little is produced in any country?

Perhaps the explanation is that our great minds have turned to science, to chemistry and physics and engineering. Have we become so bogged down in facts and in the business of earning a living that the beauty of life escapes us? Are we so full of statistics that there is no room for poetry?

And as we ponder these questions, the mind naturally turns to moral equations. Every noble era has produced a great moralist, a philosopher who has sought to relate the whole of human existence, experience and knowledge to his times. Where is such a person today, in this generation? Sartre, whose Existentialism had a moment of excitement, is already a toy among the intellectuals. In the western world, philosophy has become a teaching profession and the moralists are apologists for their times.

And yet, as one moves along the pines of lovely Tanglewood, watching young people in their innumerable arguments about music and life, it is impossible not to be sensitive to a great stirring, like the cold wind that precedes an electric storm. Here is a sampling of the cultured youth of America, from every state, who give their summers to composition and performance and to endless talk. It may be the dawn of another era of genius.

DENTAL INTERNES IN HOSPITALS

I have for many years believed that medical and dental students should take their first two years together as they take practically the same subjects. Then, after the first two or more years, they should turn to their own special practical subjects. This method should save much time, and dentistry would become a special branch of medicine, and the two professions would be more closely related.

It is a sign of the times and of how the dental profession is moving closer to that of medicine to learn that a "council on dental internship and residency" is being established in several hospitals, just as every hospital has a definite number of young medical graduate internes, who do regular tours of duty in the various departments of a general hospital — medicine, surgery, obstetrics, gynecology, urology, X-ray.

The graduate training programs approved by the Council on Dental Education of the American Dental Association cover such fields as surgery of the mouth, X-rays and radium, straightening of teeth (orthodontics), restorative dentistry, periodontia (pyorrhoea and other diseases of the gums), anesthesia, children's dentistry, and root canal treatment.

Dental internship and residency (live right in the hospital as do medical internes) have now been approved in 121 hospitals throughout the United States.

We believe all physicians and dentists will approve of the establishment of dental internships and residency as there are so many cases where the physician treating a patient in hospital wants to make sure that the teeth and gums are, or are not, the cause or partial cause of the patient's symptoms. Even infection in one tooth may not only be a contributing cause of the symptoms, but may be a factor in prolonging the illness and the convalescence of the patient.

It is so easy for the dentist or dental interne to check up on X-rays and laboratory tests while the patient is taking medical and laboratory tests. This means that the physician and dentist are in daily or weekly conference and the patient is relieved in mind as well as in body.

We can also appreciate the fact that the hospital dentist or hospital dental interne is available for dental, medical and surgical emergencies that may arise with patients already in hospital or those brought into hospital at any hour of the day and night.

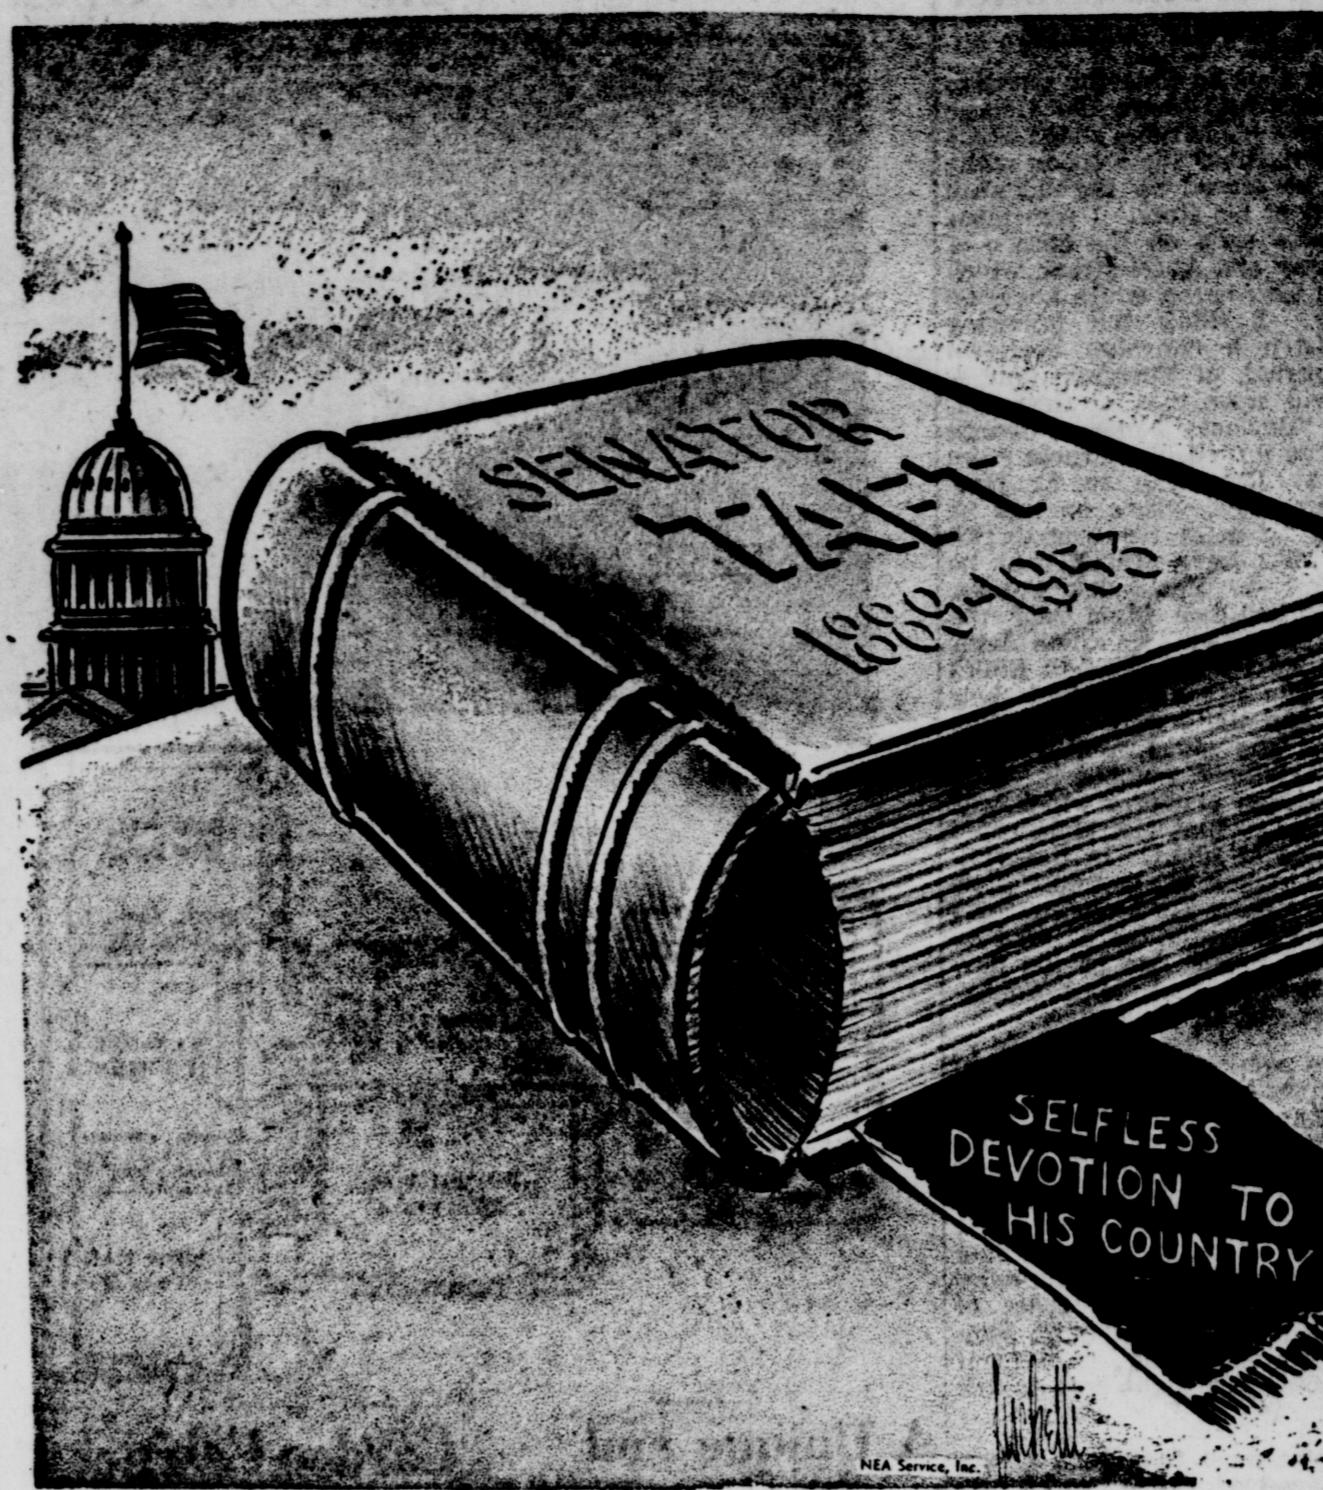

The establishment of these dental internships is a great boon to patients already in or entering hospital and give relief to the physician attending the patient.

Washburn Field Is Dedicated on Tuesday

Saugerties, July 31 — A large crowd witnessed the dedication ceremonies honoring the new Washburn Recreation Field, site of the Glasco Little League Stadium Tuesday evening. The field is named in honor of John T. Washburn, who made his property available free of charge for the construction of the sports facilities.

The Rev. Archibald Damm, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, opened the ceremonies with a short prayer and gave his blessing to the new field; he then blessed the players and the equipment as the Glasco Little League was officially inaugurated.

Bernard Rinaldi served as master of ceremonies. Louis P. Francello, as principal speaker, recalled baseball games played in the past and conveyed his best wishes and congratulations for the future. Washburn, who has always done what was in his power for the youth of the community, spoke briefly, and was given the honor of throwing out the first ball.

Two three-inning games followed in which the Giants beat the Yanks by the close score of 8 to 7.

Outing Is Held

Saugerties, July 31 — The girls' choir and the altar boys of St. Mary's held their annual outing at Taconic Lake Wednesday. Approximately 50 girls and boys made the trip by bus. They were accompanied by the Rev. Father Malloy, assistant pastor of St. Mary's, the Rev. Father Tos, of St. John's Parish in Veteran, the Rev. Father DiSesso of New York, Mr. and Mrs. William McCormick, Mrs. Charles Scala, Mrs. Leo Mignano, and Mrs. Reynolds.

To Appear at Bazaar

Saugerties, July 31 — Jimmy Perry, a ventriloquist from Kingston, has been engaged to appear, with his pal "Jerry" at the Variety Show Thursday, Aug. 6, as part of the two-day Trinity Church Bazaar. Prominent Woodstock talent also will appear in the show including Miss Gladys Tandler, soprano, who recently gave a concert in Woodstock; Mrs. Chamberlain, pianist and singer; Mrs. Clemantine Nessel, entertainer and musician; Lee Gary, a young accordionist. Also featured in the show will be Carlton Hoyt and his Hill Billies of Wittenberg with Bill Sloanake. There will be two shows, one at 8 p. m. and the other at 9:30 p. m.

Village Notes

finessing the queen from his own hand.

West won with the king of spades and returned the suit, and South won with the ace of spades. South continued with the two top diamonds and a low diamond, allowing East to win with the ten.

East promptly cashed two good spades and South found himself hard put to it for discards. By this time, of course, it was too late for anything but a coroner's jury. South's last two cards were the ace and jack of hearts, but West likewise saved two hearts and won the setting trick with his queen of hearts.

South complained about unfortunate guesses and pointed out that all of the finesse had failed. This was a case of a poor excuse being better than none, since it was simple to assure the contract against any defense.

South began correctly by taking the ace of clubs, leading to the king of hearts and cashing the top club. After doing all of this, declarer should have continued with a low club. West could win this trick, of course, but would then have to return to a different suit. Any return at all would give declarer a free finesse making him a present of the ninth trick.

Let 'Em Off' Light

Chicago (AP) — A caution light signal installed in automatic elevators has been patented by a Chicago business man. Charles W. Lerch, elevator consulting engineer, says the green light for up and red for down still will be used, but an orange caution light will serve to prevent passenger collisions. Lerch says elevator operators are on the way out in most cities from coast to coast, and his caution light signal will eliminate the necessity of the operator saying, "Let 'em off, please."

TAFT'S PLACE CANNOT BE FILLED

Robert A. Taft deeply wished to be President. Though he sought that office three times, he never won it. Yet he served his country with far greater devotion and distinction than some of those who did reach the White House.

The senator from Ohio was one of the most brilliant men ever to cross the American political stage. The son of President William Howard Taft, he felt he was born to public service, and he filled the role to the hilt.

From the first moment he stepped into the United States Senate in 1939, Taft was a commanding figure.

He understood the legislative processes thoroughly. He made himself an authority on all major bills. The Senate has never seen a harder worker. A bulging brief case, borne home almost every night, was a symbol of his tireless insistence upon being informed.

His colleagues looked to Taft automatically for guidance and leadership. He rose swiftly in party councils and esteem. A year after he entered the Senate he made his first campaign for the presidency.

The senator was a genuine conservative in outlook, but all the evidence suggests he was not an extremist, that indeed he had far more flexibility of mind than his critics credited to him. In truth, he was often unpredictable. He gave his agile mind free rein, and he followed where it took him. The results confounded both friend and foe.

Many thought of him as cold, aloof, autocratic. The senator did often show impatience with what he deemed stupidity or ignorance. But his friends maintained he was shy rather than aloof; they found him warm, friendly.

Still, the legend grew and persisted that Taft had a chilly, colorless personality. From this it was a short step to the argument that he was politically "unsalable" for presidential purposes. It was a handicap he could never overcome as he encountered successively such competing personalities as Wendell Willkie, Thomas E. Dewey and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

There was bitter irony in this for Taft. Looking the scholar, he actually was a master of political mechanics down to the precinct level. When he gained re-election in Ohio in 1950, he generated a campaign organization probably never matched in America. Yet something—or someone—always thwarted him when he tried to translate his great grasp of affairs into a successful White House bid.

Part of the story was the legend of unsalability, so firmly fixed in the minds of many politicians who otherwise admired Taft intensely. The rest is largely guesswork. Some observers blamed his foreign views, which seemed to tend toward isolationism; he denied it.

The defeat in the strident battle of 1952 was his most crushing, because he came so close. Many a man thereafter would have given himself up to bitterness. But once again, most triumphantly, Taft bewildered the detractors who saw him in too-simple, black-and-white terms. He swallowed his defeat with magnificent grace.

He accepted the Senate majority leadership, thereby enrolling as President Eisenhower's chief lieutenant on Capitol Hill. In his post, he fought ably and hard for goals his former opponent desired. He submerged himself and linked his fortunes with his rivals.

When illness suddenly felled him and he had to withdraw from the Senate scene, distinguished men of both parties attested to Taft's high talents as a leader and his impressive fairness in accommodating all points of view. It was clear he could have had a bright record as the President's main advocate in the Senate.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA)—Signings of a Korean armistice will hatch a new brood of troubles for the United States. All of them will find in the "political conference," which must be called within 90 days after the Korean cease-fire agreement goes into effect. That should put it some time before Nov. 1.

Nobody knows where it will be held, who will attend, or what will be discussed. Nobody knows whether the conference will be limited to writing a permanent peace for Korea or whether an attempt will be made to solve other current issues of the Orient.

When Secretary of State John Foster Dulles told his press conference that admission of Red China to the United Nations would not be a proper subject for discussion at this political conference, it was the first guidance many of his own staff officers had had on the subject.

The general attitude in the State Department seems to have been along the line of "Let's get the armistice signed first, then worry about the next step later."

Secretary Dulles did specify that the United States and the Republic of Korea would attend the conference and he assumed North Korea, Red China and possibly the Soviet Union would also send a delegation, but no particular thought had been given to its composition, said Mr. Dulles.

One Reason for Lack

One reason for the lack of planning is that former Assistant Secretary of State John D. Hickerson, in charge of United Nations affairs, has left for his new assignment at the War College.

Robert D. Murphy, who is to succeed Hickerson as Assistant Secretary for UN, has been kept at his present post as ambassador to Japan. When Murphy arrives in Washington his first and biggest problem will be what to do about this political conference.

A good bit will depend on what the United Nations General Assembly decides to do. The Korean war has been officially a United Nations affair, and the UN will want a voice in its settlement.

UN General Assembly President Lester B. Pearson of Canada and Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold of Sweden have been holding back on calling the Assembly into session, feeling it could do little to help the armistice negotiations. But other countries like India want the Assembly called together as soon as possible to consider post-armistice problems.

When the Assembly does meet, troubles will begin to multiply like rabbits. If all problems of the Far East are to be discussed, countries like Indonesia and India and Burma—which haven't contributed a single fighting man to the UN war—will want a voice in the negotiations.

What this complicating factor points to is the advisability of confining the political conference to the subject of Korean peace alone, if the United States can steer it that way.

When Conference Meets

When the political conference finally meets, however, it can be assumed the Communists will present demands for a UN seat for Red China and end of the UN restrictions on trade with China.

In a general conference, with many nations represented, both these concessions might be granted.

TOLL BILL OF HOUSE GUESTS

A very real problem is explained in this letter: "We entertain quite a lot and also have guests stay in our house rather frequently. Very often these guests use our telephone. As my husband and I use it a good deal ourselves, we use up our allotted calls and these extra calls made by our guests (many of them toll calls) add to our bill each month, make it quite high. The other day, I received through the mail, a mite box from a charitable organization to which my husband and I always contribute, and the thought struck me to put this mite box on the telephone table so that those using the telephone might be prompted to put their coins in it. Then when it is filled I could send it to the particular charity as my husband's and my donation. Will you please give me your opinion of this?"

The only thing you could do is to put up a list of the nearby long-distance toll charges near your telephone and hope your guests will leave the money for them.

An Appreciative Guest

Dear Mrs. Post: When having guests in to dinner, is it not bad manners for them to inquire whether a cake, or rolls or preserves, etc., is home made? Many people, today, do not have the time to make these things and, furthermore, many of these store-bought items are just as good as those made at home. This has always been a pet peeve of mine and I would like to know what you think about it.

Answer: It is very bad manners to ask questions about the food, but something complimentary can, of course, be said about any dish.

Wait for Mother

Dear Mrs. Post: When a child must interrupt a mother who is talking with a visitor in the living room, either to give a message or to ask her a question, how should the child be taught to interrupt?

Answer: She goes and stands beside her mother and waits until she says "What is it, dear?" or pauses for any length of time.

Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Her leaflet E-2 describes formal wedding procedures. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P.O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N.Y.

Area Students Will Graduate at Albany

Three area students are members of the 96th graduating class at the Albany Business College which will hold its exercises at the Chancellor's Hall August 7. These students are Robert E. Gardiner, 30 Fairmont avenue; Joanne Van Etten Kirchnak, Lake Katrine; and Walter Oehler, RFD 4, Kingston.

Highlight of the ceremonies during which 297 diplomas will be presented to students from 151 high schools and eight foreign countries will be the civil service award which last year was given to James A. Macduff, commissioner of motor vehicles. Mr. Macduff is an Albany Business College graduate. The graduate ball will be held at the Ten Eyck Hotel.

Children's Decision

San Diego (AP) — Who should speak at the third graders' assembly? Should the kindergarten children roller skate in the concrete area outside the classrooms? How should the boys and girls behave while riding in the school bus? The students of the third through sixth grades at San Diego State College Laboratory School decide these problems themselves. It's part of the college's plan to educate its 200 pupils in responsibility and to train 160 college students for teaching. Parents and teachers say the system promotes self discipline and smooth social adjustment.

Miss De Mare Is Wed In New Paltz Church

Miss Eleanor Marie De Mare, daughter of Mrs. John A. Marx of Tillson, was wed to Henry Louis Meigel, son of Mrs. Henry R. Meigel, Tillson, Saturday, July 18 at the New Paltz Methodist Church. The Rev. Willett R. Porther, Jr., officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her stepfather John A. Marx. Mrs. William Kelm of White Plains was her cousin's only attendant.

John Guethlein, South Ozon Park, L. I. was his brother-in-law's best man.

A reception for the immediate members of the family was held at the home of the bride.

The wedding trip was made through northern New York state and Canada. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Meigel will live on the Rosendale road.

The bride attended New Paltz State Teachers College and is employed by Hercules Powder Company in Port Ewen. Mr. Meigel is a graduate of Albany Business College and is employed by De Laval Separator Company in Poughkeepsie.

Former Area Pastor Will Speak at West Hurley Church

The Rev. William R. Peckham, pastor of the Methodist Church at Canaan, Conn., will be guest minister and speaker at the morning worship service of the West Hurley Methodist Church Sunday, Aug. 9 at 10:30. The Rev. Mr. Peckham was pastor for 13 years of the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church in Kingston. Before going to Canaan he served in New York. He has also served as pastor of the Methodist churches in Shady and Woodstock where he now makes his summer home.

Paul Newkirk, a layman and school teacher, will be the speaker at worship service at the Glenford Church Sunday at 2:30 p.m. The Rev. John W. Grob, pastor of these churches, is vacationing at his home in Illinois.

Personal Notes

Superintendent of Schools Arthur J. Laidlaw and family held a reunion at their summer home in Morristown. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. John M. LeFevre and children, John Jr. and Anna of Mt. Kisco; Mrs. Alan Page McCormick of Stone Ridge; and Pfc. Donald A. Laidlaw of Fort Jackson, S.C. Jason Goumas, 22 Hoffman street, and Arthur Hartigan, Lake Katrine, are working toward their masters degrees at the State University Teachers College, New Paltz. Both are New Paltz graduates. 1951. Mr. Goumas is a fourth grade teacher in Red Hook Central School and Mr. Hartigan teaches seventh grade in the Myron J. Michael School.

Five Are Appointed To College Board

Albany, Aug. 1 (AP)—Gov. Dewey today appointed three Westchester businessmen and a woman publisher to the board of the new Westchester County Community College at White Plains.

Five other trustees on the nine-member board will be appointed by the county Board of Supervisors.

The governor named:

William Collins of Yonkers, president of Walter Kidde Constructors, Inc., eighth-year term;

Mrs. Harvey Conover of Mamoroneck, president of Conover-Mast Publications, Inc., six years;

Arthur A. Berard of Mount Vernon, president of the Ward Leonard Electric Co., four years, and Samuel I. Parham, Jr. of White Plains, business manager of the National Beauty Supply Co., two years.

Subsequent terms will be for nine years. Trustees serve without compensation.

The college is one of the five temporary state technical institutes that were discontinued this year and taken over by the localities as community colleges. Others are at Buffalo, Binghamton, Utica and New York city.

McCardle Is Coroner

Dewey also announced these other appointments:

Francis J. McCardle of Kingston as a Ulster County coroner, to succeed the late Ernest A. Kelly of Kingston.

Reuben Sirlin of Mamaroneck to the Board of Visitors of Harriman Valley State Hospital at Windgate, to succeed the late Lawrence S. Greenbaum of Mamaroneck. Sirlin's term will expire Dec. 31, 1958.

Health for All

BLACK EYES

If you have a black eye and a piece of steak, eat the steak. There are lots of jokes about it, but a black eye is not funny. It may be dangerous.

Cold compresses and the passage of time will cure most black eyes. Steak is an expensive type of compress. Wads of cotton or cloth, dipped in cold water, or an ice bag will serve the purpose. Place on the eye for 15 minutes, every hour or so the first day. This treatment may prevent the bruise from looking worse than necessary. The only thing that can be done after the first day is to try to camouflage it with cake makeup or face powder and to try to suffer the jokes with good grace.

However, if vision is fuzzy or the eye is cut or painful, a doctor should be consulted at once. Otherwise, serious permanent damage may result. Although the eye may hardly be discolored, a minor injury can cause serious damage. Even a light blow can be transmitted through the fluid of the eye, with enough force to injure the retina. And a tear or separation of the retina means blindness forever in that part of the eye unless natural healing or surgery can put the separated part back where it belongs.

One of the miracles of modern surgery is the operation eye surgeons have devised to repair injuries to the retina. Tiny needles carrying an electric current are inserted through the outer coats of the eyeball in the vicinity of the torn retina. The heat induces scar tissue to form which joins the retina with the underlying tissue.

Often a number of these operations are necessary before vision is restored. It would be a lot simpler to duck the punch or turn on the light before walking into a dark room.

Cruising around, looking for a place to park, a woman saw the local radio announcer pull away from the curb, and she drove in behind him. It suddenly struck her that his program had just gone off the air; and, maybe she had hold of a good thing:

If the radio performer parked daily in that neighborhood and if she should time her downtown trips to his 1:30 p. m. sign off, she would always have a reserved parking space.

So that's what she has done. Driving downtown she listens to the last of the program, gives the announcer time to walk from the studio to his car, and then parks as he drives away.

Cheerful one—Yes, we had reached the place where we had eaten the last dog.

She—it must have been terrible.

Cheerful one—It was, they didn't even have mustard to put on it, and it was at least 20 miles to the next stand.

The custom of the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary being called the silver wedding started in central Europe. Friends would give a silver wreath to the wife on that day to symbolize the harmony which had made the survival of the marriage possible.

One night William Howard Taft, then a youthful law reporter, was on a case in Somerville, Ohio. Discovering he could not get back to Cincinnati that night unless he could get the express to stop at Somerville, Taft wired the division headquarters of the railroad: "Will you stop through-express at Somerville to take on large party?"

The train stopped.

Conductor—Where's the large party?

Taft (pointing to his own bulk)—I'm it!

And he boarded the train.

Esopus All Stars Defeat Americans, 8 - 4

Scene of Freeman's Fifth Annual Hole-in-One

More than 150 Ulster county golfers will tee off in the 5th annual Freeman hole-in-one contest, Sunday at Twaalfskill Golf Club.

Last entries are expected to swell the total to record breaking proportions at tee-time at 8 a. m.

The competition takes place on the specially constructed 135 yard hole which was built for the inaugural tournament in 1949. It is a downhill shot from Twaalfskill's practice tee to the ninth green.

The rules of the contest are simple:

Each contestant is permitted

four shots and the man and woman coming closest to the pin will receive handsome clocks for first places.

Players have been scheduled according to squad hours as requested on their entry blanks. Because of heavy congestion on the 10 and 11 a. m. squads, players who are listed then may be accommodated earlier in the morning.

Players are requested to have their clubs ready when their names are announced over the PA system.

The above photo gives you an idea of the sweep of the hole-in-one tee as viewed from the fourth fairway at Twaalfskill.

For the average player, a 7-iron will suffice unless there are problems of windage.

The players will be shooting at the 5-foot birdie circle and an outer circle of 10 feet. All shots that hit the green will be reg-

Record holders for the four-year competition as contestants tee off

Sunday are James A. Dwyer, president of the Rondout National Bank, with a shot of 2 feet $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch registered in the first tournament; and Miss Edna Britt, who won last year's event with a shot of 2 feet 9 inches.

Miss Britt, who won in 1951 and 1952, has not been active in golf this season and will not compete.

LeMay Subdues Locals After Rough 1st Frame

They moved the county seat to Port Ewen yesterday, after the valiant All Stars of the Town of Esopus Little League had humbled the mighty American All Stars of Kingston, 8 to 4, in the semi-final bracket of the District 3 tournament at the 156th FA diamond.

Today at 2 p. m., the Esopus tossers struck boldly for the District crown in the finals against Highland. And they have a powerful chance to take it all, with Bob Short scheduled to pitch.

Half of the crowd of nearly 500 roared in acclaim as little Emory LeMay, a curve-balling right hander, survived a rocky first inning to blank Kingston the rest of the way.

Big Charlie Boice didn't seem to be up to his usual par and yielded all eight tallies for the Americans before Don Krueger came in for a superb relief stint.

Armstrong Sick

Missing from the American lineup was mighty Hobart Armstrong, who was stricken with an attack of cramps before the game. But it is doubtful that even Hobart's presence would have altered the final outcome. Still, it made many fans wonder.

There was one home run hitter — free wheeling, left handed Harry Kearse, who sent one of Boice's pitches sailing majestically over the right field fence for the seventh and eighth Esopus tallies in the fifth inning.

But the hero of the day for the scrappy Port Ewen combination was little LeMay. Trying to overpower the Americans with fast balls he was raked for three hits and four runs in the first frame. Then he turned to his curve ball and used it almost exclusively in pitching three-hit ball for the next five innings. The Americans were completely bewildered by the pretzel bender and never seriously threatened.

Boice, on the other hand, was in constant trouble and, after yielding three runs in the first inning, was scored on in three of the other four innings.

Defensive Wizards

Esopus fielded sharply behind LeMay. They ran the bases beautifully, played alert ball and turned in sparkling defensive gems worthy of professionals. The community had reason to be proud of that group of boys as they marched across the bridge to smack down the titans from the big town.

Al MacIntosh, the gangling first sacker who has all kinds of trouble trying to snag a ground ball, was sharp at the plate with three solid singles. And leadoff Charlie Turner, the sweetest little shortstop you ever saw, launched two rallies with a robust double and single to the left center field alley.

Esopus batted first and scored before the spectators had settled themselves in the wooden bleachers. Charlie Turner, Bob Short and Al MacIntosh singled in that order. Jay Van Loan flied out but Wenzel doubled and it was 3-0 that quickly.

Americans Score Four

Now came the Americans' turn.

Mike Amato rifled a single through the middle, Charlie Williams was safe when MacIntosh let his dribbler ooze through his legs. Tom Cragan's solid single to left scored Amato. LeMay walked Charlie Boice on five pitches and forced in a run by walking Victor Locke.

Little LeMay resorted to his curve ball here and whiffed Frank Sammons and Joe Schowang. He got Jimmy Cullum for a strike on a curve that broke outside, but Cullum slammed an inside hook to right center to chase Cragan and Boice across the plate to send Kingston ahead 4-3. But that was the last time Kingston threatened.

Turner's scorching double to left launched Esopus' second-inning rally. Bob Short was safe on Mike Amato's miscue and MacIntosh and Van Loan followed with successive singles to run the lead to 5-4. In the fourth, MacIntosh singled and on an attempted steal completed the circuit when Cullum's throw sailed into centerfield.

Kearse Homers

The fifth inning provided the setting for Kearse's homer over the right field fence. Darrel Myers singled with two outs and Kearse, a free swinger who has been churning up airy currents with his mighty swipes, finally caught hold of a high fast ball and sent it rocketing over the wall to close out the scoring. Krueger came in and stopped Esopus cold the rest of the way.

Russian Planes

Japan from the Russian-held Kurile Islands, where the Red air force reportedly maintains big bases for fighters and long range bombers.

This contrasts with the Russian attack two days ago on the B50 which the U. S. contends was 40 miles beyond Soviet territory and far out over international water.

Vapor Trails Sighted

In the spring of 1952 vapor trails were sighted above the Aleutian Island chain which extends outward from the Alaskan mainland. There was no actual sighting of Russian aircraft nor radar pickup. But it caused an alert of U. S. air defenses throughout Alaska and the northern United States.

Reconnaissance flights over Greenland and the northern areas of the continent presumably are made by long range, four-engined aircraft.

The Soviet Air Force has a thousand or more TU4 bombers capable of flying to those areas from Soviet bases in Russia and Siberia and islands held by the Russians north of the Eurasian land mass.

A still later bomber design, of capabilities similar to the American B36, is believed to be in production.

Police Call Diner Stickup Screwiest

New York, Aug. 1 (AP)—Twenty-two-year-old William Kampf is gloomy today but yesterday, police said, he was the life of a riotous party in a Brooklyn diner.

The cops called it one of the screwiest stickups to hit town. It featured free meals for customers at gunpoint—cooked by the holdup man himself.

When there was a dearth of customers in the diner, the gunman popped outside for a few minutes to round up an unwilling half-dozen pedestrians.

Police had been called, and appeared on the scene twice. But the two diner countermen, covered by a pistol concealed in the laughing bandit's shirt, said nothing was wrong. There had been a couple of fights, they said, "but the guys left."

With the gunman at the culinary helm, business was brisk at the eatery for more than an hour. He gave away about $40 worth of food, mostly ham and eggs. And the customers had to eat, whether they were hungry or not.

The Metropolitan Transit Authority said the rush to buy tokens poured an additional $225,000 into its cashiers' booths in July. This would represent a million and a half tokens. And if the fare went up, holders would make a nickel profit on each one—a $75,000 total.

The Metropolitan Transit Authority said the rush to buy tokens poured an additional $225,000 into its cashiers' booths in July. This would represent a million and a half tokens. And if the fare went up, holders would make a nickel profit on each one—a $75,000 total.

But the State Public Utilities Commission refused yesterday to approve the requested increase.

Frustrated hoarders were reporting begging bartenders and newsboys to accept their tokens as cash.

Finally the gunman, still laughing and joking, left with $70 cash in a paper bag.

Once he went outside to make sure his car was locked. That's how police traced him, they said, through his car—which had no license plate.

Parole From Woodbourne

They arrested Kampf at his Brooklyn apartment where he lives with his wife, Florence, 19, and their son, Robert, 3.

Police said Kampf was a parolee on a robbery charge from the Woodbourne (N. Y.) Correctional Institution. Kampf was charged with assault and robbery in the dinner case.

Why did he do it?

"I had some drinks," police quoted Kampf as saying. "I didn't like the counterman's attitude. I thought it was just a gag—at the time."

Rare Wine

San Francisco, (AP)—Only five bottles now remain of an 1815 port wine specially broached for King Edward VII when he visited Lisbon as the Prince of Wales.

In 1905 the cask was found in Portugal by Charles Bellows, a New York wine merchant. Bellows bottled it, numbered each bottle and distributed them to selected clients, including the late William Rockefeller. With Rockefeller's death, a San Francisco connoisseur, who asked to remain anonymous, acquired the remaining bottles.

Marion Retires; Sons Carry On

Marion, Ohio (AP)—Harry S. Elliott, who is retiring as editor of the Marion Star after 50 years in newspaper work and service in public office, will see his name carried on in the profession. Three of his sons are newspaper men—Robert on the Miami Herald, William on the Baton Rouge Star Times and Advocate, and John on the Louisville Times. The fourth, Charles, a former newspaper man, is in public relations at Hartford, Conn.

visiting his brothers, George and Theodore Russel.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Krom and children Evelyn and Anthony, of Binghamton, were weekend guests at the home of Mrs. Krom's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Johnson, of the Leaven-kill Road.

Joseph Waxman, of Philadelphia, Pa., visited a few days with Mrs. Waxman and son, David, at their Warren street residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Sheeley and family, of Oakland, N. J. visited their brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sheeley and family on the Greenfield Road during the weekend. They are former residents of Ellenville.

The Rev. Francis McGuire, who is having a vacation from his chaplain duties at Napanoch Institution, is spending a couple of weeks with Mrs. McGuire and their daughter, Terry, at their cottage in Maine. In August the Rev. Mr. McGuire will attend a session at St. Lawrence University, Canton.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Namack and family, who are vacationing at Narrowsburg, visited Miss Cora Lowe during the weekend.

"Everybody eats on the house," he said—"Or eat it, it's good for you"—"make you healthy."

A pie route man arrived with $4.95 worth of pies. The new "boss" paid with $5 out of the register.

Finally the gunman, still laughing and joking, left with $70 cash in a paper bag.

Once he went outside to make sure his car was locked. That's how police traced him, they said, through his car—which had no license plate.

Parolee From Woodbourne

August Temperatures Forecast for Sections

Washington, Aug. 1 (AP)—The weather bureau's 30-day outlook for August calls for temperatures to average below normal in the northern half of the nation except for near normal in the lower lakes, middle Atlantic states, and northwest coast.

Above normal temperatures are expected in the southern half of the country except for near normal in the central plains, the bureau said.

Precipitation is expected to exceed normal in central and northern parts of the nation, but subnormal rainfall is predicted for the southeast, far west, and west Texas. Near normal amounts are indicated in the Rocky mountain states, Ohio valley, middle Atlantic states, southern plains and gulf coast.

Local Death Record

John O. Weston

The body of John O. Weston, 89 Henry street, who died July 31, was taken to Yonkers last evening for funeral and burial Monday. Many friends called at the parlors of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street, Friday evening to pay their respects.

Mrs. Sarah J. Palmer

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah J. Palmer, widow of Rev. Charles L. Palmer, 85 Washington avenue, who died July 30, were held at the parlors of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street, today at 11 a. m., the Rev. Forrest R. Prindle, pastor of the Church of the Comforter, and the Rev. John B. Steketee officiating. floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Many friends called at the funeral parlors Friday evening, including a delegation from the Grand Jurors Association of Ulster County. Burial was in Shawangunk Cemetery, Brunswick.

Mrs. Julia M. Buley

Funeral services for Mrs. Julia M. Buley of Lawrenceville street, Town of Ulster, who died suddenly on Tuesday, were held yesterday at 2 p. m. at the Jenion and Deegan Funeral Home. The Rev. Donald Brown, pastor of First Baptist Church, officiated. A large number of friends and relatives called at the funeral home. Many beautiful floral tributes were received. Bearers were Howard Williams, Lawrence Williams and William Williams, grandnephew and Frank Every, a nephew of Mrs. Buley. Burial took place in Pine Bush Cemetery, Kerhonkson where the Rev. Mr. Brown conducted the burial service.

Horses Problem To Navajo Tribe

Window Rock, Ariz., Aug. 1 (AP)—The horse, once a symbol of prosperity among the Navajo Indians, today can mean the poor house.

The Navajo Tribal Council has allocated $25,000 a year to rid the range of about 15,000 horses roaming freely. They eat and trample the grass and drink the limited water supply on the arid reservation.

Allan G. Harper, area director for the Indian Bureau, said the tribe took the action to enhance conservation measures.

The horse was once a sacred economic standard of the tribe. The number of horses a man had ranked him as poor, middle class or wealthy.

Horses were used as the dowry in marriages.

But then came the machine age. The horse became the mortal enemy of the Navajo, though many refused to admit it. The situation was adding to the poverty of the Indians. Here is why:

For years the Navajos have been buying automobiles. This made worthless the six or seven horses an average family had. They were no longer needed for transportation. The animals were turned out on the range to fend for themselves.

Sheep and Corn Now

Some Navajos would not give up their horses because they still considered them a standard of wealth. But a new monetary unit was in power—sheep and corn.

The horses roamed the range, multiplying unhindered. They tramped grass needed for sheep. They drank water needed for both sheep and humans.

Economic disaster faced the tribe since a horse eats as much as five sheep.

A maximum of $10 a head will be paid for horses brought in despite the fact they are almost worthless. The council hopes to sell them at a profit.

Huber Reports Theft

Carl Huber of 592 Broadway reported to police late last night the theft of a work apron, a painter's drip cloth and an automobile tire from his backyard. He estimated their value at $15. Officers William Norton and Floyd Kron investigated.

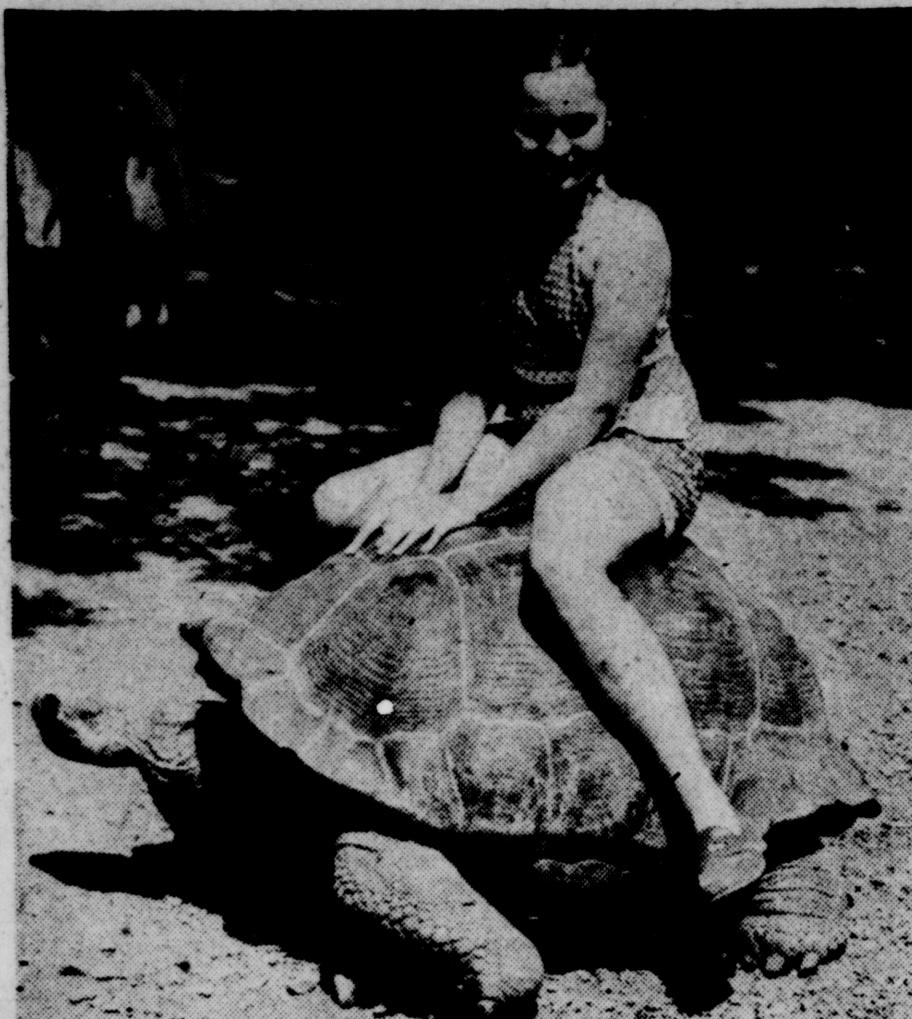

Tough Era Recorded

Norman, Okla. (AP)—When Shanghai Pierce was building his Texas cattle empire, only the brave—and rascally—cattlemen could survive. Shanghai was the bravest of them all, probably the most profane, the richest, the most colorful, the loudest, possibly the biggest. And he may have been more of a rascal than all the rest. It was the last half of the last century. For the first time, the story of Abel Head (Shanghai) Pierce has been given full-length treatment. The job was done by Chris Emmett of San Antonio, whose "Shanghai Pierce" has been published by the University of Oklahoma Press. The 326-page, carefully-documented volume sells for $5.

Sanford, Maine, Aug. 1 (AP)—A spectacular forest fire that claimed one life and threatened numerous homes raged unchecked today after blackening an area six miles long and two miles wide. Some 600 firefighters from 23 Maine and neighboring New Hampshire communities battled to confine the flames to thickly wooded sections of this southwestern corner of Maine.

Two City Court Cases Are Adjourned Today

Two cases, one involving a charge of disorderly conduct and the other a charge of assault third degree, were adjourned in city court this morning.

The case of Timothy Doyle of 10 Summer street, who was arrested by Lt. James P. Martin at police headquarters July 25 on a charge of disorderly conduct, was adjourned to August 8 by Special City Judge Harry Gold. This was the second time the case has been adjourned.

Doyle was arrested following an alleged disturbance he made at headquarters when he appeared to pay a traffic fine. He was represented by Attorney Guido Napoleone.

The case of Anne Liverides, 33, of 177 Green street, who was arrested at headquarters by Lt. William J. Leonard late yesterday morning on a charge of assault third degree, was adjourned for two weeks.

Complainant in the case is Michael Denyo of 19 Hurley avenue who charges that she struck him on the left hand at Mike's Bar, 19 Hurley avenue, on July 19, with a drinking glass, injuring his ring finger.

State Funeral . . .

and "Martha" team which had shared many a year of political campaigning—remained in her upstairs room. Confined to a wheelchair, she had flown to New York earlier this week for a bedside visit with her fatally stricken husband.

Mrs. Darrah Wunder of Cincinnati, an old family friend who began living with the Tafts after Mrs. Taft suffered a partially paralyzing stroke in mid-1950, passed away Saturday morning.

Complaint in the case is Michael Denyo of 19 Hurley avenue who charges that she struck him on the left hand at Mike's Bar, 19 Hurley avenue, on July 19, with a drinking glass, injuring his ring finger.

Among the early callers were the President and Mrs. Eisenhower. The Eisenhowers visited with Mrs. Taft for about 10 minutes. The President left a letter.

In a public statement, Eisenhower had said:

"The American people have lost a truly great citizen and I have lost a wise counselor and a valued friend."

This came from the man Taft had fought bitterly last year for the Republican presidential nomination, then pitched in to help discharge the White House responsibilities he himself had sought for so long.

More than any other thing, the 63-year-old Ohioan had wanted to follow the footsteps of his father, William Howard Taft, into the White House.

But with their differences buried for the sake of national and party unity, Taft and Eisenhower pulled together. By degrees there grew up a mutual respect, a golf course camaraderie and finally a warm friendship.

Taft's judgment in congressional timing and his peacemaking ability were accounted a tremendous asset for Eisenhower administration attempts to put through its program at its first legislative session.

Many Tributes

From people who opposed him, as well as from his supporters, there were tributes.

Former President Truman, generally at odds politically with Taft, said his death was America's loss. Truman added:

"He and I did not agree on public policy, but he knew where I stood and I knew where he stood."

John L. Lewis and other union leaders, who often criticized the Ohioan and the Taft-Hartley Labor Relations Act he co-authored, mourned his passing.

"A tragic loss to America," said the mine workers' chief.

AFL President George Meany said: "His sincerity and his courage in his convictions were respected by all his fellow citizens."

CIO President Walter Reuther said: "He was an outstanding American who unstintingly followed a course of action that he believed best served his country."

Taft's death was announced to the hushed Senate yesterday by Sen. Bricker (R.-Ohio), who said in a barely audible voice:

"The sad news has just arrived over the wires of the death of my colleague, the floor leader of this body."

In the House, Rep. Jenkins (R.-Ohio) told his colleagues:

"Our Robert Taft is gone. America's greatest statesman has passed away."

From Democrats and Republicans alike from political foes and close friends, eulogies poured out. They all stressed phrases like "Mr. Republican" as well, and "rock-like integrity."

In Europe, leaders of Britain, France and Italy quickly expressed their regret. Even Moscow radio, in a broadcast monitored in London, took note of Taft's passing, but in a one-sentence account:

"According to London radio, the prominent member of the U. S. Senate, Taft, died today."

There had been published reports that Taft knew the malignant nature of his ailment long before his death. But neither the family nor his physicians could confirm this.

Besides his widow, Taft leaves four sons—William Howard Taft III, ambassador to Ireland; Horace Taft; Lloyd Taft, and Robert Taft. William and Horace came to Washington, while Lloyd stayed in New York and Robert returned home to Cincinnati.

Measures still being worked on in Senate-House conferences include the appropriation for the State, Commerce and Justice Departments and a bill to extend the reciprocal trade law until next June 12.

As to the debt limit bill, there appeared to be three alternatives before the Senate Finance Committee:

1. Pigeonhole it for the time being.

2. Order full hearings on it next week.

3. Work out a compromise for a temporary extension or a smaller boost.

Report it out to the floor for debate later today or next week.

The first seemed to be the best bet as the committee assembled. But there was some feeling that the persuasive powers of Millikin and Humphrey could not be written off completely in advance.

Want Special Election

Some high Republicans, reportedly led by Sen. John W. Bricker, are anxious for a change in Ohio law which now gives Lausche the right to choose a successor. It would require a special election to name Taft's successor within 120 days.

Under present law, whoever Lausche appoints will serve until after the 1954 election. Whoever is elected in 1954 will serve the last two years of the term.

There was considerable enthusiasm yesterday in the Legislature for the proposal. But, as the day wore on, a number of Republicans confided to newsmen they felt a GOP move to change the law to fit the present situation would be inadvisable.

The difference between the admitted Republican "trial balloon" proposal and the present law: Taft's successor would be elected at the 1953 election instead of the 1954 election.

Official Review Likely In Clergyman's Case

Washington, Aug. 1 (AP)—The perjury accusations freely made in connection with investigation of a clergyman's alleged Red links seemed headed today for official review by the Justice Department.
